TAR SPOTS.

Tar spots may be removed by putting lard on them and letting stand three hours. Then wash in soap suds containing a little ammonia to remove the grease.

When making starch put in some small piece of candle. This will make the clothes nice and glossy and will also prevent the iron from sticking.

IMITATION CEDAR CHEST.

Although we cannot all afford a real cedar chest for storing furs and woolens, we can make a substitute that will answer every purpose of the genuine, and at scarcely any expense. Get or make a large pine box of the desired size, hinge on the cover securely, and if there are any cracks or worm-holes putt them up smoothly. Paint or stain the outside of the chest to match the room, get some oil of cedar, and paint the inside of the box, using plenty of the oil. This will soak into the pine, changing it into cedar that will retain the odor for years. When dry line with cloth or paper. Paper is preferable, as it holds no dust, and can be taken out and renewed often.

CULINARY USES FOR LEMON.

1—Juice of lemon is an excellent preparation in both fruit and vegetable salads.

2—Piece of lemon to garnish the dish and add flavor to most kinds of meat, fish and game.

3—Tough meats made tender by rubbing the meat with the juice of a lemon.

4—Add a slice or two of lemon to a pot of tea.

5—Lemon catsup can be made by mixing 1 tablespoonful of grated horseradish with the grated rind of 4 lemons. Add 1 teaspoonful of salt, the juice of lemon, a dessertspoonful each of white mustard seed, a few blades of mace, 4 cloves and a dash of red pepper. Boil 35 minutes, then bottle while hot. In 5 or 6 weeks this will be ready to serve with fish.

6—Lemon juice added to rice or macaroni when boiling makes the kernels much whiter and a delicate flavor is imparted.

7—Lemon juice for flavoring in cookery is unexcelled.

8—Lemon juice, olive oil, yolk of egg, mustard and sugar make a nice salad dressing.

9—Remove the pulp and the skin makes dairy receptacles for serving salads, ices, etc.

10—Lemon should be added when stewing prunes and peaches or other dried fruit.

11—Lemon cut in slices is very nice when canning cherries or other fruits.

RICE WATER BREAD WITH CONDENSED MILK.

The evening before baking serve rice for supper. Boil 1 cup in about 1 1/2 quarts of boiling water. When done, strain off water, add 3 heaping tablespoons of sugar. When lukewarm add 1-2 cake yeast foam and let stand over night in a warm place.

About 9 o'clock the next morning scald 1 cup milk (condensed) with 1 cup of water, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons sugar. When butter is melted and milk is of right temperature add to rice water. Mix in about 5 cups of flour and beat well. Set in pan of warm water and let stand back of stove or on warming oven until noon, when it will be light and foamy. Now add 1 tablespoon of salt and mix to a stiff dough and knead thoroughly about 10 minutes. Return to raising pan, put on lid, cover with cloth and let raise to over double in bulk; knead again and let raise again to same height; knead again and loaf. Let rise to nearly 3 times former bulk and bake. This recipe makes one pan of rolls and two large loaves of bread. Following this schedule the rolls will be ready to take from the oven for supper at 6:30. They are delicious served hot with butter and maple syrup.

CHEESE SAUCE.

One-half pound cheese, cut fine, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons corn starch, cook thoroughly, then add 1 teaspoon paprika, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 and 1-2 cups milk, cook all together, then add cheese, when boiling add 1 egg slightly beaten.

WAS VICTIM OF PLOT, SHE SAYS

Former Pendleton Woman Escapes From Asylum and Starts Fight to Clear Records.

The following story in the Oregonian of yesterday concerns a former Pendleton woman who was the wife of J. P. Wager, former editor of the East Oregonian and former state senator.

To attempt to clear from the record her commitment to the State Hospital for the Insane at Stellancom, Wash. Mrs. Olive B. Dudley, ex-wife of Jas. P. Wager, newspaperman of this city, will return to Cosmopolis and Montezuma this week. She was committed to that institution last summer, was an inmate for months, and made her escape Thanksgiving day, after she had nearly succumbed to an attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. Dudley attributes to her independent spirit in the management of her property interests in Cosmopolis her experiences that, when related in detail, sound like a translation of a page from a work of a Russian revolutionist.

Mrs. Dudley in her fight to clear up the records as to her sanity is in possession of a statement from prominent Portland specialists that her mind is normal.

More than five years ago Mrs. Wager left Portland, having lived here for 12 years, and went to Cosmopolis, where she had property interests. Mr. Wager was in poor health, and Mrs. Wager took charge of the property and operated it for the only income derived by the family. She operated the property for five years.

Property Wanted by Company. Mr. and Mrs. Wager were divorced in the meantime, and she was remarried, the second time to Mr. Dudley. Last summer Mrs. Dudley had trouble with a company that wanted to acquire her property. She alleges that the company tried to "freeze" her out. Her husband feared results she says, and suggested that the two leave the city for a while. He suggested that she come to Portland, and he intended to go to Idaho, where she was interested in mining properties. She agreed to the plan. She was, however, to join him in Idaho later, after she had heard from him. But she waited for more than a week in Portland and no letter came. She returned to Cosmopolis and found a note from him, she said, indicating that he had run away with another woman.

During that week in early June, 1915, a charge had been made. In her absence, of insanity. When she returned she said she heard vague rumors of such a charge, but could not locate the source from which it emanated. However, she was later committed to the state hospital as a parricide, her commitment being signed after she had been out on bonds for several days.

Communication is Denied.

After her commitment to the hospital, Mrs. Dudley alleges that she was refused visits from friends and that no letters were allowed to reach her. She says she was placed in a ward with a number of other patients and that her nights were sleepless and her days were days of horror. She broke down and was forced to take to her bed. Mrs. Dudley's story of her escape from the hospital is remarkable.

REQUEST FOR INJUNCTION AGAINST DIRECTORS REFUSED

Wolverton Holds Evidence Proving Conspiracy in Oregon Portland Cement Co. Was Not Sufficient.

PORTLAND, Sept. 26.—Federal Judge Wolverton has refused Aman Moore's request for an injunction restraining certain directors of the Oregon Portland Cement Co. to exercise proxies at stockholders' meeting. Moore who is also an official of the company, recently filed a million and a half dollar suit against fourteen rival companies under the anti-trust law. He told the judge he feared the directors would withdraw the suit. The judge held there was no evidence proving the existence of a conspiracy in restraint of trade.
